

Lisa Rhodes is the Center's Administrative Director: a position she has held since 1986. She oversees the Center's financial, personnel, administrative, and facilities operations and consults with the Executive Director on organizational management and programming issues. She graduated from Ohio State University and joined the Center soon after to become a puppeteer with the touring production of The Wizard of Oz. Following the tour, she became the part-time bookkeeper before being promoted to Administrative Director. Rhodes has participated in numerous Xperimental Puppetry Theater (XPT) pieces, including "The Blotter," a shadow puppet piece based on a local newspaper's column. In 1992, Rhodes performed the one-person adult show, By a Length of Rope; the piece was featured as part of the Southeast Regional Festival of Puppeteers of America in Charleston, SC. Rhodes has served as business manager for both the 2007 and the upcoming 2011 the Puppeteers of America national festivals. She is also controller of UNIMA-USA, the U.S. branch of the international puppetry organization.
